

Larry Prochazka, Ed.D.

I inspire people to live with clearer purpose and meaning in their lives. At a deeper level, everyone wants peace and to experience a joyful flow in their life. I help people find their flow and learn to operate below the intellect to be guided by their inner knowing.

Larry is a dynamic, moving and engaging presenter, Larry brings over 25 years of experience as a speaker and facilitator. He has been described as a facilitator with a capital “F” for his ability to stay out of the way while help a group achieve meaningful results. Recently, a client told him he is a “master at engaging people”.

Larry has facilitated programs for Fortune 100 companies, government, non-profit and educational organizations including: Discovery Channel, IBM, Microsoft, US West, HP, FBI, EPA, NOAA, HRSA, Department of Navy, US Air Force, ISPA, Community Health Centers, American Heart Association, ISPA, Green SPA Network and others. He has been an adjunct faculty member with Johns Hopkins University teaching creativity.

He focuses on the “people skills” aspect of business helping people “talk to each other”, assist them in engaging deeply to see beyond the obvious, and to use “possibility” thinking to recognize new alternatives. His flexible and authentic style engages people deeply and helps them identify personal perspectives they can utilize to implement change and move in the direction of their dream.

Larry creates a safe place for people to engage and explore, to discover solutions and identify ways to grow. He integrates learnings from his personal journey’s into practical and pragmatic insights to inspire participants to make meaningful changes in their own lives.

Spending time in nature helps him re-connect to his deeper source. He’s facilitated mountaineering programs from the Sierra’s to the Teton’s and Wind River’s to the Adirondacks. Recently, he backpacked through SE Asia visiting the oldest rain forest on the earth, trekking in search of Sumatra Orangutan, traveled rivers in Sabah, Borneo appreciating unusual wildlife and hiked Rinca and Komodo Island among the Komodo Dragon. Nature and stillness, staying connected to the “deeper self” is precious to him.

He’s been described as authentic, “human” and as someone who “really believes in what he is talking about”. On the personal front, Larry is an adventure traveler, mountain biker, cook/baker, barista and barista trainer, camper, hammock lover, latte artist and, according to those who know him well, an inspiration.
